PREFATORY REMARKS.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY GEORGE, EARL OF CLARENDON, K.G.,

LORD LIEUTENANT-GENERAL AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

In obedience to your Excellency's commands, I have the honor to lay before you the Returns of Agricultural Produce in Ireland for the year 1849.

Owing to the disturbed state of the country, the counties of Tipperary and Waterford and the city of Dublin were not included in the year 1848. The returns for 1849 are complete for the entire kingdom. It has, therefore, been necessary to deduct the numbers belonging to those districts from the general totals of 1849, to obtain results comparable with the returns for 1848.

These returns have been compiled on the same principle as the returns for the preceding year; the only addition is a general county table, at page xiii, giving the number of farms and extent of cultivation on the several classes of farms, in each county. The object of this table is, that referring to districts not likely to change, it will be available hereafter for comparison; whereas the boundaries of the Poor Law Unions and Electoral Divisions in the country have recently undergone such extensive changes, that any exact comparison between the past and future state of those districts will be impracticable. In the tables, however, now laid before your Excellency, the boundaries of the old unions and electoral divisions have been observed, the new divisions not having been complete when the present compilation began, nor are they indeed yet fully carried out.

PART I.—CROPS.

Farms.

The classification according to the size of farms, which was introduced in the returns for 1848, has been continued in the present returns, and they at once bring under notice the alterations which have taken place in the divisions of land. The total decrease in the number of farms, between 1847 and 1848, was 71,137. The decrease between 1848 and 1849 was 46,011. This smaller reduction would appear to indicate a pause in the process of consolidation of farms in progress in this country; but when the classes in which the reduction in 1849 has taken place are compared, the subject assumes, perhaps, an increased importance. In the cottier class the numbers were the same in 1849, in many counties, as they were in 1848, and in other counties the reduction was inconsiderable, the total reduction being only 2,846, against 18,185 in the former year. In the next two classes, i. e., holders of farms from 1 to 5 acres, and from 5 to 15, the reduction had diminished in the first class from 24,147 in 1848, to 13,585 in 1849, and in the second, from 28,379 in 1848, to 24,081 in 1849; but in the 4th class, i. e., holders of from 15 to 30 acres, the decrement rose from 4,274 in 1848, to 6,984 in 1849. In the last class of farms, i. e., above 30 acres, the increase in the total number was 1,455 in 1849, in 1848 it was 3,670.

Extent of Crops.

The total extent of land under crop continues to increase, notwithstanding the reduction in the number of farms. The total increase in leguminous crops was 56,535 acres, being an increase of nearly 2 per cent on the preceding year In green crops the increase was 16,687 acres, being nearly in the same proportion.

The counties in which the extent of corn crops materially increased were Tyrone, Mayo, Wexford, Roscommon, Cork, Cavan, Longford, and Sligo. In Londonderry, Monaghan, and some others, there was little or no change; in some counties the equality of extent is remarkable: thus Galway, in 1848, had 115,088 acres, and, in 1849, 115,700; Fermanagh, in 1848, had 55,852, and in 1849, 55,097; Kerry, in 1848, had 49,597, and in 1849, 49,574; in Meath there were 125,064 in 1848, and, in 1849, 125,814. This may be taken as a confirmation of the correctness of the returns, since in all these districts the number of farms, and extent of crops on each, have changed considerably, while the aggregate remains the same.

The returns for 1849 show that the extent of the potato crop had increased in the counties of Antrim, Donegal, Fermanagh, Londonderry, Tyrone, Sligo, and Wexford, and that it had decreased in every other county except Mayo and Roscommon, where it was nearly the same as in 1848. The total decrease was 86,841 acres. On the other hand, the turnip crop had increased 69,024 acres, and this increase was spread over every county in Ireland: Mangel Wurzel had also increased 4,175 acres.

The following numbers exhibit the comparative extent of preparation crop of one year, to the extent of white crop in the succeeding year, for 1847 and 1848, exclusive of the counties of Dublin, Tipperary, and Waterford:—

Green Crops in 1847,	648,405	White Crops in 1848,	2,816,045
Green Crops in 1848,	1,030,605	White Crops in 1849,	2,872,580
Green Crops in 1849,	1,047,292

The rates of produce, in 1849, varied greatly in different districts. In some districts they were reported so low, that additional inquiries were instituted; but these only tended to confirm the truth of the original returns. Thus, from Dunshaughlin, in the county of Meath, where the produce of potatoes was set down at 12 barrels to the acre, the writer states that "the "rate, which is low, may invite challenge; but I am satisfied, from the source "from which the information was derived, that it cannot be controverted. "Perhaps few places suffered so much from the blight, in proportion to the "extent of the crop, as this locality." Again, from Baltinglass, in the county of Wicklow, where the produce of potatoes was set down at 12½ barrels per acre, the answer was, "I beg to state that, from inquiry made through the respectable "farmers, and from my own knowledge of the produce of the potato crop, I am "led to believe there were not more than 12½ barrels per acre in this district. "The only reason I can assign is, that the disease set in, in this neighbourhood, "early in the month of July, and blasted all the stalks, which stopped the growth "so, that no part of the crop came to perfection." The produce returns from the Naas district, in the county of Kildare, gave only 3 barrels of wheat, and 15 barrels of potatoes to the acre, respectively. The writer states, in explanation, "that the return of rates of produce was made out, among other sources, "upon information received from respectable farmers and inhabitants of this "district. I have again consulted them on the subject, and they state the "return as correct." The returns from Balbriggan, in the county of Dublin, having also given only 3 barrels of wheat as the average produce per acre, the following is an extract from the report received in explanation: "I find that the "above average is as near the amount of produce as can be calculated. I have "my information from the best informed farmers in this neighbourhood." The return from Mallow, in the county of Cork, was likewise 3 barrels of wheat, and 6 barrels of oats, to the acre. The explanation from this district was as follows: "With respect to the wheat crop, it has been admitted that it was "unquestionably the worst crop the farmers have had for years in this locality; "and when I set it down at 60 stones to the acre, I am confident that this "was about the mark. The oat crop thrashed out a little better than was antici-"pated, and I may have been about a barrel under; I would, therefore, correct "the return to 7 barrels." These very low rates of produce were not general; and the average on the entire kingdom, for 1849, was only in one instance below that of 1848; in every other case the rates of produce were either equal to or above that of the previous year.

Rates of Produce.

The following table shows the average produce per acre in 1847, 1848, and 1849:—

	Wheat, Barrels of 20 stones.	Oats, Barrels of 14 stones.	Barley, Barrels of 16 stones.	Beef, Barrels of 16 stones.	Rye, Barrels of 20 stones.	Beans Bushels of 8 gallons	Potatoes. Barrels of 20 stones.	Turnips Tons of 160 stones.
1847,	$6\frac{6}{10}$	$8\frac{4}{10}$	$8\frac{7}{10}$	$8\frac{6}{10}$	$8\frac{2}{10}$	$28\frac{4}{10}$	$57\frac{7}{10}$	$15\frac{6}{10}$
1848,	$4\frac{6}{10}$	$7\frac{6}{10}$	$8\frac{4}{10}$	$7\frac{7}{10}$	$7\frac{0}{10}$	$29\frac{6}{10}$	31	$14\frac{2}{10}$
1849,	$5\frac{3}{10}$	$7\frac{6}{10}$	$8\frac{4}{10}$	$8\frac{0}{10}$	$8\frac{2}{10}$	$26\frac{0}{10}$	$44\frac{7}{10}$	$16\frac{1}{10}$

The success of any crop must necessarily depend, in a great degree, on the natural fitness of the soil, and on the character of the climate; and, in a country like this, the wheat crop must, from the latter cause, be always a hazardous one. Nevertheless, the mode of cultivation also enters largely into the question. In the observations on the returns for 1848, attention was drawn to the great breadth of white crops of that year, compared with the preparation crops of the previous year; but an extension of the latter in 1848, led to the hope that higher rates of produce might be attained in 1849. The apparent improvement is, however, but small; yet, when the extreme depression which existed in some districts is considered, it is a matter for congratulation that, on the whole, the previous averages have been not only maintained, but slightly exceeded.

In converting the number of barrels of produce into quarters, the weight of a quarter of wheat has been taken at 470 lbs.; oats, at 313 lbs.; barley, at 404 lbs.; bere, at 346 lbs.; and rye at 454 lbs.

Flax.

The extent of flax cultivation, in 1849, exceeded that in 1848 by 6,451 acres, on the aggregate of the whole country; although, in the provinces of Leinster, Connaught, and Munster, the returns show a considerable diminution, this diminution having been more than compensated by the increase in Ulster alone, which amounted to 8,102 acres. The county of Donegal produced in 1849, the greatest quantity of flax; but in the county of Londonderry its extent bore a larger proportion to that devoted to other crops, than in any other county in Ireland, the proportion being 1 acre of flax to every 14 acres of arable land. In Donegal it was 1 to 18; in Monaghan it was 1 to 21; in Tyrone it was 1 to 27; in Armagh it was 1 to 33; in Antrim it was 1 to 56; in Down it was 1 to 64; in Cavan it was 1 to 78; and in Fermanagh it was 1 to 104. The following table shows the extent of flax cultivated in each province during the years 1847, 1848, and 1849:—

	Ulster. Acres.	Munster Acres.	Leinster Acres.	Connaught. Acres	Total
1847, ...	53,701	1,156	1,644	1,811	58,312
1848, ...	49,540	1,249	1,239	1,826	53,863
1849, ...	57,651	937	741	985	60,314

PART II.—STOCK.

Number of Stock.

The quantities of stock have undergone considerable changes, between 1848 and 1849. The total number of cattle have increased 56,397, and pigs 136,202; whereas horses have decreased 13,363, and sheep 182,551. That a decrease in the number of horses should follow a reduction in the number of farms it is but reasonable to expect; but it is more difficult to assign a cause for the immense reduction in the number of sheep.

Printed image digitised by the University of Southampton Library Digitisation Unit

Distribution of Stock.

The classes of farmers among which the changes most extensively prevail is a matter of much interest. The cottier class have increased their stock in value by £37,459, the increase being shown to have taken place in every description, except sheep. On the class of farms from 1 to 5 acres, all kinds of stock have diminished, except pigs and goats; the total loss to this class being equal to £27,226. Alterations in a similar way have taken place in the class from 5 to 15 acres; the total reduction amounting to £158,075. The stock of the next class of farmers has undergone considerable changes; horses and sheep are considerably reduced in numbers, whereas cattle and pigs have increased. On the whole, the value of the stock belonging to this class of farmers has decreased £21,739. In the next and last class, an increase in every description of stock is observable, except in sheep and poultry; the value of the increase being estimated at £397,837. In computing the value of the stock, the prices used in the Irish census of 1841 have been adopted.

Table showing the extent of the changes which have taken place in each description of Stock; also the changes which have taken place in the Stock of each class of Landholders.
